Chapter 12I: Immigration Detainers

SEC. 12I.1. FINDINGS.

The City and County of San Francisco (the "City") is home to persons of diverse racial, ethnic. and national backgrounds, including a large immigrant population. The City respects, upholds, and values equal protection and equal treatment for all of our residents, regardless of immigration status. Fostering a relationship of trust, respect, and open communication between City employees and City residents is essential to the City's core mission of ensuring public health, safety, and welfare, and serving the needs of everyone in the community, including immigrants. The purpose of this Chapter is to foster respect between law enforcement and residents, to protect limited local resources, and to ensure family unity, community security, and due process for all.

Our federal immigration system is in dire need of comprehensive reform. The federal government should not shift the burden of federal civil immigration enforcement onto local law enforcement by requesting that local law enforcement agencies continue detaining persons based on non-mandatory immigration detainers. It is not a wise and effective use of valuable City resources at a time when vital services are being cut.

The United States Immigration and Customs Enforcement's (ICE) controversial Secure

Communities program (also known as "S-Comm") shifts the burden of federal civil immigration enforcement onto local law enforcement. S-Comm comes into operation after the state sends fingerprints that state and local law enforcement agencies have transmitted to California Department of Justice ("Cal DOJ") to positively identify the arrestees and to check their criminal history. The FBI forwards the fingerprints to the Department of Homeland Security (DHS) to be checked against immigration and other databases. To give itself time to take a detainee into immigration custody, ICE sends an Immigration Detainer – Notice of Action (DHS Form I-247) to the law enforcement official requesting that the law enforcement official hold the individual for up to 48 hours after that individual would otherwise be released. Immigration detainers may be issued without evidentiary support or probable cause by border patrol agents, aircraft pilots, special agents, deportation officers, immigration inspectors, and immigration adjudication officers.

Given that immigration detainers are issued by immigration officers without judicial oversight, and the regulation authorizing detainers provides no minimum standard of proof for their issuance, there are serious questions as to their constitutionality. Unlike criminal detainers, which are supported by a warrant and require probable cause, there is no requirement for a warrant and no established standard of proof, such as reasonable suspicion or probable cause, for issuing an immigration detainer request. At least one federal court in Indiana has ruled that because immigration detainers and other ICE "Notice of Action" documents are issued without probable cause of criminal conduct, they do not meet the Fourth Amendment requirements for state or local law enforcement officials to arrest and hold an individual in custody.

On December 4, 2012, the Attorney General of California, Kamala Harris, clarified the responsibilities of local law enforcement agencies under S-Comm. The Attorney General clarified that S-Comm does not require state or local law enforcement officials to determine an individual's immigration status or to enforce federal immigration laws. The Attorney General also clarified that immigration detainers are voluntary requests to local law enforcement agencies that do not mandate compliance. California local law enforcement agencies may determine on their own whether to comply with a voluntary immigration detainer. Other jurisdictions, including Berkeley, California; Richmond, California; Santa Clara County, California; Washington, D.C., and Cook County, Illinois, have already acknowledged the discretionary nature of immigration hold requests and are declining to hold people in their jails for the additional forty-eight (48) hours requested under immigration detainers. Local law enforcement responsibilities, duties, and powers are regulated by state law. However, complying with voluntary immigration detainers falls outside the scope of those responsibilities and frequently raises due process concerns.

According to Section 287.7 of Title 8 of the Code of Federal Regulations, the City is not reimbursed by the federal government for the costs associated with immigration detainers alone. The full cost of responding to an immigration detainer can include, but is not limited to, extended detention time, the administrative costs of tracking and responding to detainers, and the legal liability for erroneously holding an individual who is not subject to an immigration detainer. Compliance with immigration detainers and involvement in civil immigration enforcement diverts limited local resources from programs that are beneficial to the City.

The City seeks to protect public safety, which is founded on trust and cooperation of community residents and local law enforcement. However, immigration detainers undermine community trust of law enforcement by instilling fear in immigrant communities of coming forward to report crimes and cooperate with local law enforcement. A 2013 study by the University of Illinois, entitled "Insecure Communities: Latino Perceptions of Police Involvement in Immigration Enforcement," found that at exposing themselves, family, or friends to a risk of deportation. Indeed, immigration detainers have resulted in the transfer of victims of crime, including domestic violence victims, to ICE. According to a national 2011 study by the Chief Justice Earl Warren Institute on Law and Social Policy at UC Berkeley, entitled "Secure Communities by the Numbers: An Analysis of Demographics and Due Process" ("2011 Warren Institute Study"), ICE has falsely detained approximately 3,600 U.S. citizens as a result of S-Comm. Thus, S-Comm leaves even those with legal status vulnerable to detainers issued without judicial review or without proof of criminal activity, in complete disregard for the due process rights of those subject to the detainers.

The City has enacted numerous laws and policies to strengthen communities and keep families united. In contrast, ICE immigration detainers have resulted in the separation of families. According to the 2011 Warren Institute Study, it is estimated that more than one-third of those targeted by S-Comm have a U.S. citizen spouse or child. Complying with the immigration detainer thus results in the deportation of potential aspiring U.S. citizens. According to the 2011 Warren Institute Study, Latinos make up 93% of those detained through S-Comm, although they only account for 77% of the undocumented population in the U.S. As a result, S-Comm has a disproportionate impact on Latinos.

The City has enacted numerous laws and policies to prevent its residents from becoming entangled in the immigration system. But, the enforcement of immigration laws is a responsibility of the federal government. A December 2012 ICE news release stated that deportations have hit record figures each year. According to the Migration Policy Institute's 2013 report, entitled "Immigration Enforcement in the United States: The Rise of a Formidable Machinery," the federal government presently spends more on civil immigration enforcement than all federal criminal law enforcement combined. Local funds should not be expended on such efforts, especially because such entanglement undermines community policing strategies.
