6. Presentations (discussion & possible action item)

a. Juvenile Probation Department

i. Presenter: Verónica Martinez, Deputy Director of Administrative Services

Deputy Director Martinez presented the JPD's 2024/2025 budget projections.

Commissioner Ye asked what are the chances that youth have been readmitted into Juvenile Hall and if they have data on that information, to which Martinez said they do have that data and they can provide that information soon. Ye added that she would like to see if those community investments are effective in keeping formerly incarcerated youth out of jail after they serve their time.

Commissioner Faagau-Noa asked if they used the crime reports from the DOJ, to which Martinez said that they do participate in that reporting.

Commissioner Wu asked what restorative practices they partake in at Juvenile Hall, to which Martinez said that they do have several programs and specifically noted that they have designated programs for detained and sentenced youth in Juvenile Hall to ensure they have live coaches to help them through those processes. Wu asked if these programs have enough funding to be effective, to which Martinez said that because they've seen an increase in incarcerated youth that the cost has gone up, but they've also gotten more funding because of that. Martinez added that there's never enough funding and that lack of adequate funding has resulted in a shortage of counselors.

Commissioner Ye asked what determines if a youth receives a citation or is put in detention, to which Martinez said that it depends specifically on the alleged crime that the youth committed, but it also depends on the case specifics or the judge that determined the course of that case. Ye asked if the ratio of cases per probation officer has caused problems, to which Martinez said that while they are determining what the correct ratio should be, that it has caused a heavy burden on the POs.

Chair Barker Plummer asked if the state law changes regarding the shift from state to local responsibility of juveniles has affected San Francisco's Juvenile Hall, to which Martinez said it has increase the financial burden onto the City's finances but has allowed them to shift that funding more to the discretion of the City to focus on programming. Barker Plummer asked if they could explain the increase in the administrative costs and if that's why they're seeing an increase in department spending, to which Martinez said the department has decided to shift some programmatic staff from other funding sources to then be included into the administrative costs instead.

Public Comment (3 minutes):

- (1) Sandra: They would like to see the data of the effectiveness. They mentioned that there was a case with a girl who was sent to take a taxi with no finances to help support them. They said that the POs (probation officers) need more training to support youth better, and that the system needs to be fixed. They invited all Youth Commissioners to attend a Juvenile Probation Commission meeting, which will be taking place next Wednesday, March 13th at 5:30pm. They said that at previous meetings, they have called jails campuses, but that a jail is a jail.

Officer Fong entered the meeting at 5:58pm.

- b. San Francisco Department of Homelessness and Supportive Housing
 - i. Presenter: Emily Cohen, Bryn Miller, and Christine Rolan

Christine Rolan and Bryn Miller presented their HSH budget projections.

Commissioner Wong asked how the two newly acquired for TAY permanent supportive housing units will be accessible for young adults, to which Rolan said that there's access centers across the City that can help connect young people to those sites, even if the PSH sites aren't located directly where the youth are located. Miller added that these sites are specifically located in places where the community partners can best access those youth-in-need. Wong asked what strategies are in place to make sure that the TAY navigation center remains effective despite the tough budget outlook, to which Rolan said that they plan their budget projections in multi-year outlooks to ensure they can maintain their facilities and programs years in the future.

Vice Chair Listana asked if there are any specific funds within their budget that goes towards serving LGBTQ+ youth to access permanent supportive housing and other services, to which Miller said there are four access points across the City with two of them being specifically accessible for LGBTQ+ youth (SF LGBT Center & LYRIC). Listana asked if any of the projected budget reductions will affect LGBTQ+ youth programs, to which Rolan said that they avoided any cuts to programming by identifying cuts they can make by applying for new funding sources.

Commissioner Faagau-Noa asked what identifiers exist to help get youth into housing, to which Miller said there's an assessment of their needs and state to determine who is most in need since they do not have enough resources to help everyone who needs it.

Officer Adair asked what are the specifics about the $10 million in reductions, to which Rolan said that those funds were reduced from shelter spaces that were originally for COVID-19 shelters, mainly due to renegotiating the costs of those spaces rather than actually cutting the number of beds.

Chair Barker Plummer asked what work is being done to adjust the assessment, especially for LGBTQ+ youth who typically are not able to qualify, to which Miller said they've recently provided for emergency hotel vouchers specifically for LGBTQ+ youth. Barker Plummer added that the City has seen that there are hundreds of vacant PSH units and not filling those is a failure of delivering those resources, to which Miller said that there's a dashboard where the public can see the most recently updated statistics. Miller said that they currently have about a 12% vacancy rate because of some units needing repair, undesirable living situations that people don't want to live near, and other related issues.

Chair Barker Plummer asked about the reductions in funds from the Our City Our Home fund, to which Rolan said that the fact that the OCOH fund is based on gross receipts tax has fallen due to the reduction in revenues from companies due to the sluggish local economic recovery since COVID-19. Barker Plummer also said that HSH can significantly improve in its effort to address the needs of young people since they only spend 9% of their entire budget on youth, to which Rolan said that the budget isn't set up to mirror the unhoused population and all of its changes, but that they're trying to better categorize the budget to ensure that they're addressing the needs of various populations equitably.

Commissioner Wong asked what ways the Youth Commission can advocate for to ensure HSH can better address the needs of unhoused youth, to which Rolan said that they can advocate for better funding streams and Miller said they can participate in public comment at the Board of Supervisors when they are looking at legislation.

Public Comment (3 minutes):

(1) Sandra: They are not sure if this department is working with probation, but they said that the HSH access points are not youth-friendly and kids cannot find resources or services on their own. They said that there's many families who can't find resources or who are prevented because of higher qualifications or an overcomplicated system. They said the vouchers are okay but they need actual housing.

- c. Department of Public Health - Office of Overdose Prevention
 - i. Presenter: Neva Legallet, Overdose Prevention Analyst

Dr. Jeffrey Hong and Neva Legallet presented on overdose prevention.

Commissioner Ye asked if the numbers were correct since she found information that shows that 22 youth have overdosed fatally in 2023, to which Legallet said it's an ongoing conversation regarding how to best support each school site throughout San Francisco. Dr. Hong added that the 2023 file hasn't been added yet since the medical examiner has yet to finalize all of the causes of death for that calendar year, and they'll be updating that data when it comes to that. Ye asked how they quantify what programs are correct to address the drug crisis and how they collect data, to which Legallet said that there's a public dashboard that has available data but it takes a while to finalize that information.

Officer Wu asked if there's any conversation about adding drug education into SFUSD's curriculum, to which Legallet said that they're providing support to the school district but cannot directly produce the curriculum.

Public Comment (3 minutes):

(1) Sandra: They are a mother and grew up in San Francisco. They talked about the mass killings of youth in the 1990's, which was about 2-3 youth killed a month due to gun violence. They said that doctors need to come together to fix the drug crisis and reduce the stigma, and that families are being harmed by these types of policies like the proposition in the March 2024 election.

Officer Wu left the meeting at 6:30pm, and returned at 6:33pm.

Chair Barker Plummer called for a 10-minute recess at 6:45pm. Chair Barker Plummer called the meeting back to order at 6:56pm.

Commissioners asked questions regarding the intent in changing the framing of the questions, to which staff said that they have used these questions for the past three years and believe that these new questions will be easier for both appointing officers and staff to know more about the youth applying to serve on the SFYC.

Commissioner Ye recommended an amendment to the phrasing and framing of New Applicant Question 5 to expand on youth's experience in leadership, to which staff agreed.
